

What is CT Environmental Forum?

CT Environmental Forum (CEF) is an organization which provides a forum for environmental professionals to share and exchange information and experiences on environmental matters, and to learn about the latest issues regarding environmental regulation. The forum was founded by a small group of environmental professionals seeking a way to acquire accurate regulatory knowledge in a timely fashion. As professionals, we need to continually make contacts with others to further our expert knowledge and broaden our understanding of environmental issues.

Keeping In Touch With Environmental Issues

Members of CEF meet monthly to discuss upcoming changes in laws and regulations and the impacts on our community. Expert presentations and panel discussions allow all members to gather information and stay current with environmental compliance issues.

Improving Agency and Professional Contacts

CEF provides the opportunity for members to meet and talk with governmental agencies, at the federal, state, and local. Compliance agency representatives often attend meetings as speakers or panel members. During these meetings, CEF members have an opportunity to ask questions about regulatory issues on an informal basis. Also, other members may share advice for effectively dealing with the various agencies on compliance, inspection, or day-to-day environmental issues.

Continuing Environmental Education Opportunities

In addition to monthly meetings, CEF conducts seminars on environmental topics. Topics have included RCRA regulations, water, air and soil contamination, and pollution prevention technologies. CEF is proud to have been selected as the only Connecticut based organization to win an EPA Administrator's Award for a seminar on recycling.

Membership Involvement

CEF thrives on the volunteer efforts and dedication of its membership. In addition to programs and workshops, members are involved with CEF's public education seminars and other activities that help keep our communities environmentally safe.

Don't miss this exciting opportunity to gain the competitive edge that is offered to you through CEF membership. The following are the types of memberships available:
